

By the King.

Hercas We haue bene informed of the great fraudes and deceits vsed in dying of all kindes of Silke, but especially in blacke, which hath so farre exceeded, that by the mixture of diuerse bad and hurtfull things in dying thereof, as namely of a corrupt matter o: stusse called Slippe, there hath bene an extraordinarie increase of weight, sometimes to the doubling of that which it was before, and sometimes more and sometimes lesse, wherby the silke so deceiptfully Dyed, is so rotted, corrupted & spoiled, that it is not fit to be worne or vsed, and yet is fally made faire to the eye, to deceiue and abuse the buyer and wearer thereof: And whereas also we haue taken knowledge that an Acte of Common Councell hath lately passed for reformation of such kind of deceiptfull Dying of Silke within our City of London and the Liberties thereof: And that the carefull putting the said Acte in execution hath already wrought some good effect within the said City and the Liberties thereof, for the abolishing of the said fraud and deceit: And wheras also we are informed, that great quantities of the said corrupt dyed Silke is not onely daily brought into this Kingdome from foraine parts, but also the same is couertly Dyed, and sold in many places of this Realme, whereby we doe perceiue and foresee, that if there be not present restraint, and that a publike Reformation thereof be not executed in all parts of the Realme, Our louing Subiects will bee still abused and deceived; notwithstanding any good order that can be taken within Our said City of London for reformation thereof: Wherefore we hauing with the advise of Our Councell conceived that it is very requisite to prohibite and supprese the Dying & selling of such corrupt dyed Silke in all places of this our Realme, and to give Order that no person or persons whatsoeuer, shall hereafter bring into this Kingdome from foraine parts, any such deceiptfull heauy dyed Silke; haue thought fit to signifie Our pleasure to Our louing Subiects by Our Proclamatiōn in that behalfe: Willing, and straightly charging & commanding all and all maner of persons whatsoeuer, as well Our naturall borne Subiects, as Denizens or Strangers, that none of them, nor any other person or persons whatsoeuer, doe at any time or times hereafter attempt, or presume to bring or cause to be brought into this our Realme, or Dye or cause to be Dyed in any parts thereof, or sell or put to sale, or cause to be sold or to be put to sale, any Silke dyed with that corrupt matter or Stusse called Slippe, or any other matter or Stusse, which causeth any increase of weight in the said Silke, more then of necessitie is required for the colour thereof, vpon paine of forfeiture of all and every quantitie and quantities of Silke so corrupted, Dyed, or so brought or caused to be brought into this Our Realme, or sold or put to sale, or caused to be sold or put to sale contrary to this Our present Commandement: And also vpon paine of confiscaſion of the said Silke to be burnt, and of Our high indignation and displeasure, and of such further paines, penalties and punishments, as for the contempt of Our Commandement Royall in this behalfe may any way be inflicted vpon them or any of them so offending. And we also straightly charge and command all and singuler Justices of peace, Mayors, Sheriffes, Bayliffes, Constables, Headboroughs, and all other our Officers and Subiects whatsoeuer, that they doe at all times hereafter care fully and diligently see and take order, that this Our ordinance and Royall Commandement hereby signified and expressed be in all points duly performed, and that as often as information shall bee brought to them of any Silke of that kinde so fallyfied in the weight, either brought into this Kingdome or Dyed here, That they doe seize the same, and aduertise Our Councell of the quantitie and the parties faultie, that order may be taken for the punishing of them, and destroying of the corrupt Stusse.

Given at Theobalds the 17. day of July, in the tenth yeere of Our Reigne of Great Britaine,
France and Ireland.

God saue the King.
